Clitheroe

Located at the heart of the Ribble Valley, this historic market town retains much of its old charm and character reflected in its family-run specialist shops. The skyline is dominated by a huge limestone rock crowned by 800-year-old Clitheroe Castle Keep. In its shadow the Castle Museum is now fully open following a complete makeover, with hands-on galleries, exhibits and displays covering 350 million years of history. There is also a large open-air auditorium which hosts concerts in summer months, and on Clitheroe's outskirts, Edisford Bridge Picnic Area, which was once a battleground of the Scots and Normans, is now the ideal spot for a peaceful family visit.

Burnley

Mid Pennine Gallery has a changing programme of contemporary work by established, new and local artists, and is located in the basement of Burnley Mechanics, the venue of the Burnley National Blues Festival held every Easter. Historic Towneley Hall has a museum and art gallery with an excellent collection of paintings, ceramics and furniture and, in its brew house, the Museum of Local History will take you back to bygone days. The Queen Street Mill Textile Museum revisits the reign of 'King Cotton' and is located in Briercliffe. Or forget work and visit delightful Thompson Park Boating Lake with its Italian Gardens and miniature railway.

Accrington

A fine Edwardian Tudor-style house set in nine acres of parkland, Haworth Art Gallery boasts Europe's largest public collection of Art Nouveau Tiffany Glass and also stages a programme of temporary exhibitions. The impressive Accrington Town Hall also hosts events, and the town's stone railway viaduct is also worth seeing. There are 70 stalls to browse in the Victorian Market Hall every day except Wednesday and Sunday, and the open market, with a further 180 stalls, is held on Tuesday, Friday and Saturday.

Blackburn

Blackburn boasts the North West's largest market with over 400 stalls and Lancashire's largest Anglican Cathedral, where you can see an impressive collection of modern art. Blackburn Museum and Art Gallery is noted for the Hart bequest, a remarkable treasure trove ranging from art and coins to an Egyptian mummy, and also houses the collection of the former Lewis Textile Museum. And there's no shortage of textiles in the town's mill shops.

Preston

Preston's old dock is now a picturesque marina, and at the Ribble Steam Railway and Museum you can see fine locomotives and enjoy a 1.5-mile steam-hauled riverside journey on the Preston Dock Railway. The Harris Museum and Art Gallery houses historical and contemporary decorative art in a beautiful Grade I listed building, and Preston's Old Court House is where you can experience a bygone era in the Museum of Lancashire.
